Miss Neal's 4th grade is studying California history. They began studying the early explorers which later was followed by a study of the California Indians. The third period of the social science project was spent in studying Missions. During the study of Indians, the children built an Indian hut or wickup, which was large enough for them to play in. At present, the children are erecting San Diego Mission, the dimensions of which are 5 1/2 ft. long and 4 ft. high. It is being constructed of adobe bricks, made of adobe and straw and will be covered with a tile roof.

At the regular meeting of Mrs. Moon's L6-H5 civic league meeting Wednesday, Oct. 31, two plays were presented by the children. Those taking part in the play called "The Good Witch" were Leona Padgett, Pauline Gates, Mildred Southwell and Doris Zumwalt. A 5 minute skit, depicting a Hallowe'en nightmare of a child was very entertaining. These two plays were the children's own production, being directed and presented by them. Their teacher became an "onlooker" during this event.

Social science groups in the L6 grade are planning a study of Italy and hope to have many interesting experiences while searching for materials on this country.

Elizabeth Wisdom, L6, has been absent from school for two weeks and is missed by her many friends.

A number of children entered Ocean Beach school this week, among them were: Lois Eby from Florence school; Emily Louella Campbell and Lloyd Campbell from Altoona, Pennsylvania; Junior Bell from Alice Birney school.

RICHLEY HARDWARE BROKEN INTO MONDAY NIGHT

Burglars entered the Richley Hardware store Monday night by use of a pass key on the back door. Merchandise known to be missing when the proprietor checked up, was a .410 gauge shotgun, 4 rifles, some shot gun shells, 3,000 rounds 22 shells, 2 pair pliers, 3 Remington sheath knives, 2 fishing reels, pocket knives, flash lights, etc., to the value of $50 to $75. The guns taken were in a case which the boys tried to open but had broken the glass to get into it.

NATIONAL TRIBUNE SAID TO INDORSE BURNHAM

Local veterans supporting the candidacy of Rep. George Burnham for re-election were pleased this week over receipt of their copies of the National Tribune for October 18, which contained the following endorsement of Rep. Burnham:

"It is highly important that ex-service men and their friends throughout the country support those senators and representatives who have stood by them. True friends of the veterans who served in the house in the last congress and are candidates to succeed themselves Nov. 6 are listed (Burnham is listed). These are the representatives who voted against the second 'gag' rule in favor of overriding the President's veto of the independent offices appropriation bill last spring."

Ocean Beach News Starting 13th Year

With this issue the Ocean Beach News starts on its 13th year, having commenced publication in November, 1922, and with the issuance of our last number, October 26, 1934, ended its 12th year.

This newspaper, like most others, has continued with every issue to work for the betterment of the community; to champion the cause of good government and those improvements which add so greatly to the better living conditions. Every article we have printed has not suited every person, but we have not specially tried to do that, believing it to be impossible. Many improvements the News has worked for have been realized, while some have not, but there is yet a time to work and win whatever the community will strive earnestly to accomplish.

The newspaper performs a great public service. It gives local community news about your neighbors; improvements contemplated and under way; it shows people what to buy for their comfort, their convenience and their enjoyment; it shows them especially where they may buy safely and economically. It will do this service for the reason that very few business men will spend good money to advertise merchandise that might disappoint a customer. The advertising merchants are invariably those who believe in honest merchandise and real service to customers.

And the money spent with this office remains largely, we would say about 75 per cent, with local merchants. Practically 100 per cent of Ocean Beach money spent with us remains here to benefit the butcher, the baker, the grocer and every line of retail trade.

The dollar expended with the local printer is of greater value to the community than the dollar spent for merchandise.

The local merchant or business buying printing outside of their community are robbing their own cash register. A good many need education along this line.

The dollar spent for printing is the most loyal dollar in your community.

In Ocean Beach the great majority are loyal in paying their subscriptions, however, there are a few to whom the following article might allude. It was handed us by a local minister some time ago who thought it a pretty good joke:

"A preacher at the close of one of his sermons said: 'Let all in the house who are paying their debts stand up.' Instantly every man, woman, child, with one exception, rose to their feet. 'The preacher seated them, and said: 'Now, every man not paying his debts stand up.' The exception noted a careworn, hungry-looking individual, clothed in a last summer's suit, slowly assumed a perpendicular position."

"How is it, my friend," asked the minister, "that you are the only man not to meet his obligation?" "I run a newspaper," he meekly answered, "and the brethren who stood up are my subscribers, and..." "Let us pray," exclaimed the minister. —Alabama Baptist.

WARREN - WALKER SCHOOL

Hallowe'en afternoon, the students of the Warren-Walker school celebrated with an informal party. The rooms were beautifully decorated during the art period with black and orange streamers, grimacing Jack-o'-lanterns, black cats, witches on broomsticks and bats. Pin the tail on the cat, musical rug, animal and relay races were some of the games enjoyed by the students. Several original stories were told by the upper grade students and songs were sung. Refreshments were served at the end of the afternoon.

Parker Burroughs was chosen safety officer of the week because of his outstanding conduct.

The kindergarten class has been dramatizing the story of "The Little Red Hen." The work has correlated in the art study and clay modelling. They are preparing the play to be presented for the rest of the students' enjoyment.

Marjorie Stewart has returned to school fully recovered after a weeks absence due to illness.

The Loman Reporter

Next week you shall hear about the semi-annual faculty party at the Zlacc clubhouse. It is destined to be a success with Miss Fenton and an efficient committee in charge, with so many planning to attend, and with so happy a choice of place.

PLHS—Thru the Science department, a member of the coming February graduating class will receive and honor award given by the Bausch and Lomb Optical company as an encouragement for the most progress made in the study of science in three years of high school science work. The choice of student to receive the bronze medal award will be made by the faculty.

PLHS—Twenty-five members of the Loman faculty met Tuesday afternoon of Oct. 23 to organize a Faculty Book Club at Point Loma High school for the convenience of those teachers who wish to keep in touch with current book publications. Miss McPhee, Mrs. Neill, and Mr. Doyle were the initiators of the plan and will constitute the executive committee of the organization whose annual dues will be spent for books chosen from a list suggested by the twenty-five members. Miss McPhee, Mrs. Neill, Mr. Doyle and Miss Clark will choose from the lists so requested and will purchase books or accept their donation or temporary use from anyone within or without the club.

PLHS—Bryce Santry seems to be spreading out in his athletic work lately. If you drive by Balboa park some day after school, you may see him working out by leaps and bounds, hand springs and summer-saults beneath the trees on the green turf. Together with the Chinese twins he is preparing a feature act for possible use at the Exposition next spring. Bryce cannot fail to score in this line with his persistent application to his physical prowess. Some day we shall read an entertainment program featuring his act.

PLHS—The Senior High Honor society has elected the following annual officers: President—Fleider Lutes Vice-president—Mack Graham Secretary—Betty Boone Treasurer—Bill Shreve Chairman of Committees: Finance—Rosemary Moats Entertainment—Mary Shreve Publicity—Anita Milligan Project—Stuart Fraser

PLHS—The Social Science Department this fall seems to be specializing in the timely. In the ninth grade work under Miss Shafer, Chairman of the Department, the students in several classes started the year's work with a study of beginnings in their own community. The Portuguese Settlement in Point Loma, the Japanese of San Diego, a History of Ocean Beach, San Diego Bay and Harbor, Loma Portal, and San Diego's Beginnings were among the separate reports and papers in the project. This week the same classes are discussing and informally debating the proposed Townsend Old Age Pension.

PLHS—English 600 under Miss Clark has been proceeding toward the past in literature by way of the present. In a term's study of American prose and poetry the first block of work included extensive reading from what these writers are doing today: Stuart Chase, Truslow Adams, Agnes Repplier, Heywood Brown, Paul De Kruijff, Henrik Van Loon, Charles Brooks, William Beebe, and Louis Adamic. Among the favorites of the class of over forty students are "Mere Marie" by Repplier, "Mexico" by Chase, "The Native's Return" by Adamic, "Microbe Hunters" and "Hunger Fighters" by De Kruijff, "The Story of Mankind" and "Geography" by Van Loon and Heywood Brown's daily column in The Sun.

English 400, on the other hand, has been approaching Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar" by way of a rapid reading of modern plays from a broad but carefully selected list. While we do not include much of Eugene O'Neill, we do read "Emperor Jones",

DELIGHTFUL EVENING ENJOYED BY KIWANIS AND WIVES

Once a month or thereabouts Kiwanians entertain their wives at an evening dinner and program, the affair this week being delegated to Dr. Frank R. Felt.

A course dinner was served at the Felt home, 4475 Del Monte avenue, at 6:30, with President Myron Insko in charge until time for the program which was announced by Dr. Felt.

A splendid program had been arranged. Two violin solos were given by Mrs. Baker, To Spring by Grieg and By The Waters of Minnetonka, the violinist being accompanied at the piano by her mother, Mrs. Clyde Walters; Dr. Ivy W. Parks gave a short talk as regards Propositions 9 and 17, and Dick Barbour gave a few explanations on Propositions 10-11. Mrs. Walters sang, Love Has Eyes by Sir Henry Bishop and a tenor solo, The Nomad by Bertin Hamblin, was sung by Rev. James Hughes accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Hughes.

Congressman and Mrs. George Burnham were honored guests of the evening, Mrs. Burnham giving a delightful talk about starting the Congressional term in Washington, her interest in activities there and the hearings of Senate committees. She stated that in the beginning of appointments to committees of the House Mr. Burnham had declined nearly all these appointments until a place on the Naval Affairs committee was offered, was just what Mr. Burnham had wanted and been waiting for. Mrs. Burnham's informal address was interesting and greatly appreciated by members present. Mr. Burnham also made a few short remarks regarding the volume of work that had been performed by the last session of Congress.

Mr. and Mrs. John Harrison were guests of the club for the evening.

DELIGHTFUL HALLOWEEN PARTY GIVEN ON POINT LOMA

The Misses Josephine Hastings and Charlotte Fried were hostesses to twenty-five of their school chums Saturday evening, October 27, at Miss Hastings' home on Point Loma. The evening was passed playing games which included Murder, which is really not as bad as it sounds, bunko and Who sir, I sir? After which the guests went on a very cleverly planned treasure hunt.

Apple cider, doughnuts and sandwiches followed the treasure hunt. The refreshments were not spared, and were enjoyed by everyone.

Those present at the party were Misses Margie Weiss, Eleanor Wilkinson, Betty Jean Blevins, Marjorie Forward, Marjorie Wahnenberger, Martha Sterne, Virginia Cuff, Ann Baxter, Barbara Hamm, Lois Griffin, Pauline Kearns, Ella May Fraser and the hostesses.

Messrs. Wallis Isom, Alvis Isom, Howard Jones Austin Hartvigsen, Charles Allen, Amory Cutet, Phillip Ogle, Robert Golden, Earnest Harris, Jim Sullivan, Bob Brennen, Wilton Stewart and Douglass St. Morris.

and at least introduce the student to the American playwright whom rumor chooses as the next Nobel Prize winner in literature. From Barrie to Rosset and Augustus Thomas to Josephine Preston Peabody or Percy Mackaye the students choose to read "Quality Street", "The Copperhead", "The Piper" or Sheriff's "Journey's End". Capek's "R. U. R." is a favorite; as is Barrie's "The Admirable Crichton" and Drinkwater's "Abraham Lincoln". Galsworthy's "Strife", "The Mob", and "Loyalties" and even Ibsen's "An Enemy of the People" are read and discussed.

An especial feature of these weeks of English work is a coordination with what the screen and the air offer that is artistically worth while. With the formation of taste and the creation of standards in view, Helen Hayes in "What Every Woman Knows", on the air or Myrna Loy and Clark Gable in "Men in White" or Molnar's "Paul Street Boys", in American movies "No Greater Glory", are subjects of class discussion.

Education Week Nov. 5 to 11

Programs designed to present to the public the ideals and aims of the schools of today educating for tomorrow, are to be given in the schools district during American Education Week, Nov. 5 to 11, and parents and citizens are urged to visit the schools. Recent critical developments in national life make participation in the observance of this week a paramount duty of citizens.

"For those citizens who are unable to attend in the daytime, the schools have arranged evening programs, and it is hoped that employed men and women will take advantage of this accommodation by the school authorities to their time," says Will C. Crawford, superintendent of schools, "because it means extra work and extra hours for our teachers and we would like to feel that the public is appreciative enough to visit the schools. It is estimated that throughout the nation next week approximately fifteen million people will visit their schools and become acquainted with the efforts that educators are making to keep the schools up with the march of events and economic progress."

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

A GREAT COMMOTION

A GREAT commotion had broken out in the Old Orchard. Instantly Skimmer the Swallow flew over to see what it was all about and Peter Rabbit followed, lipperty lipperty-lip, as fast as his legs could take him. He was just in time to see Chatterer the Red Squirrel dodging around the trunk of a tree, first on one side, then on the other, to avoid the sharp bills of the angry feathered folk who had discovered him trying to rob a nest of its young.

It Was Their Nest.

Peter chuckled. "Chatterer is getting just what is due him," he muttered. "It reminds me of a time I got into a Yellow Jacket's nest. My, but those birds are mad!"

Chatterer continued to dodge from side to side of the tree while the birds darted down at him, all screaming at the top of their voices. Finally Chatterer saw his chance to run for the old stone wall. Only one bird was quick enough to catch up with him, and that one was such a tiny fellow that he seemed hardly bigger than a big insect. It was Hummer, the Hummingbird.

Hummer followed Chatterer clear to the old stone wall. A moment later Peter heard a humming noise just over his head and looked up to see Hummer alight on a twig, where he squeaked excitedly for a few minutes, for his voice is nothing but a little squeak. Often Peter had seen Hummer darting from flower to flower and holding himself still in mid air as he thrust his long bill into the heart of a flower to get the tiny insects there and the sweet juices he is so fond of. But this was the first time Peter had ever seen him sitting still. He was such a mite of a thing that it was hard to realize he was a bird. His back was a bright shining green. His wings and tail were brownish with a purplish tinge. Underneath he was whitish. But it was his throat on which Peter fixed his eyes. It was a wonderful ruby red which glistened and shone in the sun like a jewel.

Hummer lifted one wing and with his long needle-like bill smoothed the feathers under it. Then he darted out into the air, his wings moving so fast that Peter couldn't see them at all. But if he couldn't see them he could hear them. You see, they moved so fast that they made a sound very like the humming of Bumble the Bee. It is because of this that he is called the Hummingbird.

In a few minutes he was back again and almost at once was joined by Mrs. Hummer. She was dressed very much like him but did not have the beautiful ruby throat. She stopped only a minute or two and then darted over to what looked for all the world like a tiny cup of moss. It was their nest.

QUESTION BOX
By ED WYNN...
The Perfect Fool.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I just received a letter from my nephew, who lives in England. He writes me that his wife is suffering with "water on the brain." Can you tell me what that means?

Sincerely,

U. TELMEER.

Answer: When a woman has "water on the brain" it simply means she has a notion (an ocean) in her head.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I live in a boarding house. I pay $20 a week but the food they serve is not fit for a pig to eat. What shall I do?

Truly yours,

I. BETTY KNOWS.

Answer: If the food is really not fit for a pig to eat, just sleep there and get your meals some other place.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

My birthday was January 4. My girl sent me a pair of gloves for a present but they are too large for me. What shall I do?

Truly yours,

A. B. SEEDER.

Answer: Just pour about a half ounce of Scotch whisky on them. If it's the kind of Scotch they're selling now, a half ounce will make them tight.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

My wife returns home next Saturday from the hospital bringing with her our triplets just five weeks old. I am surprising my wife, as I have just had a nursery fitted out for our new babies. It is a beautiful room and I would like to have a suitable name painted on the door instead of "Nursery." What do you suggest?

Yours truly,

POP. PAH.

Answer: Three babies, five weeks old, in one room? If I were you I would call it the "Bawl-room."

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I got a job last Monday in a department store in the shoe department. At the end of the first week I was discharged. Can you tell me why? I swear to you I didn't do anything.

Sincerely,

I. STAUL.

Answer: That's why you were discharged.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I just moved into a new neighborhood. This morning I passed one of my new neighbors and bowed to her, but she did not return the bow. What would you do in a case like that?

Yours truly,

SHEEZA KATT.

Answer: That should be a warning to you. She may be the kind of a neighbor who never returns anything.

Fancy Biscuit.

Take two cups of flour, four teaspoons of baking powder, one-half teaspoon of salt, one tablespoon of sugar, two tablespoons of shortening, one egg and two-thirds of a cup of milk, one-third cup of sliced dates, four tablespoons of peanut butter and one egg yolk. FOR A GOLD STAR MOTHER

By ANNE CAMPBELL

THE first point of the star is Memory. . . . The recollection of his baby ways. Upon the road to yesterday we see The shining candor of his infant gaze; The touch of velvet cheek, the clinging hands, The cunning accent making sweet demands.

Service to him, the next point of the star. . . . The days and nights were busy in his care.

There is no rest where little babies are For mothers who are happiest to share The beating of their hearts with their small sons. They concentrate their lives on these dear ones.

Love is the third point of the star of gold. In blest affection, all the stars converge. Only a mother knows how hearts can hold

So much of love; it is her life's chief urge. Her love will follow him across the world, And past the gates where his lone flag is furled.

The fourth point of the star is sorrow

See! The star is falling. . . . Shadowed is its light.

Only a mother's faith holds valiantly Against the coming of the final night. Now hurtling into space the gold star goes, Its cargo all the heartbreak mother knows.

Only the fifth point keeps the star from wheeling Forever lost in midnight's empty space; But still upon the sky a faint light stealing Shows it upheld within its lawful place. Serene upon the heavens see it ride, A gold star swinging by its fifth point—PRIDE!

cocoa. Stir in the sugar and coffee gradually. Beat until smooth and spread on the cake.

Coffee Ice Cream.

Scald one and one-half cups of milk with one-third of a cupful of finely ground coffee, strain through a double cheese cloth, add one cup of sugar, the beaten yolks of four eggs, one-fourth teaspoon of salt; cook over water until thick, adding one-fourth cupful of sugar and one cupful of cream; cool, add three more cups of cream and freeze. "WHEN KNIGHTHOOD WAS IN FLOUR"

By CHET GRANT

The Iron Horse screeched to a halt before Mabel Porter's house. Georgie Blake inhaled deeply. Exhaling, he bellowed, "Hey, Mabel!" A hot shimmering silence.

"Hey, Mabel!" No answer. Georgie leaped to the ground and walked up the driveway. Mabel Porter-Maybelle to you—was a picture of cool loveliness reclining in the hammock.

"Hello, Georgie," she drawled. "Hello, yourself," Georgie retorted, dropping on the grass. "Say, why didn't you answer me; you deaf, or somepin'?"

Mabel closed her eyes and seemed to suffer an exquisite pain. "The word is 'deaf,' Georgie." There was no comment so she opened her eyes to find Georgie regarding her with interest.

"Say, Mabel, you look the nuts in that rig," he enthused. "But it's too bad you got them freckles on your nose. It kinda spoils the whole effect."

Mabel glared. "Georgie Blake, your manners are absolutely vile!" "Guess my manners are just as good as yours."

"Hollering in front of the house," Mabel continued. "Wearing your old clothes; no garters on your socks. Talking slang. Why can't you be like Ferdinand Hoyt? He . . . why here he comes now," she finished with delight as a blue roadster rolled up the driveway.

Ferdie Hoyt, son of Elston's wealthy citizen and banker, nodded briefly. "Hello, Blake," and then bent above a palpitant Mabel. "My dear," holding her hands, "you look divine."

"Thank you," Mabel twittered, making room for him to sit beside her. Ferdie tugged at the sharp creases in his flannels. He looked impossibly cool in his shirt, blue tie and blazer.

"It's a charming day," he observed.

"Isn't it," Mabel agreed. "Like heck," Georgie growled. "It's lousy." He began to peel his polo shirt off his brown torso. Mabel's nose tilted.

"Are you warm, Ferdie?" she inquired.

"A little," he admitted. "Would you object, Maybelle, if I took off my coat?"

"Oh, please do," she urged, ignoring Georgie's snort.

"What I really came for," Ferdie explained, "was to ask your father's permission to take you to a dance this evening. It's over the tracks at the Lucky Loafers' bakery. I thought it would be a lark to go, you know."

Georgie scratched his ribs. "That's a tough place, Ferdie."

Ferdie smiled. "I am capable of taking care of Miss Porter," he replied grandly.

The Lucky Loafers' bakery dance was tough and it was rough, and after a single dance Ferdinand decided to take Mabel elsewhere. They were approaching his roadster when a voice inquired, "What's your hurry, little one?"

It was a hard voice. Ferdie looked into a hard face. A big hand held Mabel by the wrist. "Not so fast, girlie," Butch Miller said. "How'd you like to shake a leg with me?"

"Do you know who I am?" Ferdie demanded.

"Sure," the tough guy grinned.

"What of it?"

"Well, let the young lady go at once," Ferdie ordered.

"Like this?" Butch yanked Mabel into the circle of his arms.

"Now you see here . . ." Ferdie began when a high-pitched falsetto interrupted him. Mabel recognized it as Georgie's before he came up to them out of the shadows.

"My dear Butch," Georgie greeted the tough lad, taking hold of the arm around Mabel's waist, "you look simply divine tonight."

Surprised, Butch let go. "Say what is this?" he growled.

"Manners," Georgie squeaked. "I'm a gentleman knight, Butch."

"What the . . ." Butch scowled and clenched his fists.

"It's a charming evening," Georgie smirked, "but it's a trifle warm. I wonder, Butch, if you would object if I took off my coat?" He drew off his blue serge and Mabel noticed for the first time that he was impeccably dressed.

"What I really came for, Butch," Georgie continued, handing Mabel his coat, "was to ask your father's permission to sock you one on the jaw, but since he isn't here I'll sock you anyway." His fist lashed out smack against Butch's hard jaw.

Butch staggered and then lowered his head and charged with falling fists. Georgie side-stepped and whanged his fist down behind Butch's ear just as Ferdie was lowering himself into a convenient barrel. Butch stayed down.

Georgie raised his hand on high and with a limp wrist offered it to Mabel. "My dear Maybelle, may I see you home?"

"You shut-up!" Mabel snapped, walking to the Iron Horse.

"Thanks!" Georgie sighed with relief. He backed the Iron Horse around and then shot by the barrel in which Ferdie stood bedraggled, smeared from head to foot with some white substance.

"Why, that was Ferdie!" Mabel exclaimed.

"Uh-huh," Georgie grinned. "He was posing."

"Posing?" Mabel puzzled. "For what?"

"When Knighthood was in Flour," Georgie chuckled. "Say, loosen this collar for me, will you, I'm suffocatin'."

Zoo Polar Bears Refuse to Take Bath in Cold Weather

It will come as a surprise to many people to learn that the zoo polar bears detest the cold. During the winter months they are probably the dirtiest animals in London. Nothing will induce them to take a bath when the temperature falls below 50 degrees; and if the water bears a coat of ice, they gingerly make a circuit of their tanks with their backs towards it, trying the ice with their enormous hind feet. In winter all the elephants are oiled from head to foot, we are told. Though an elephant can be acclimatized to an English winter, its tough, non-resilient skin quickly cracks in cold weather, dirt and insects finding their way into the fissures and causing endless discomfort. A few buckets of oil obviate this, and until the lubricant soaks in, give the animal the appearance of a gigantic bronze statue.

Salvador Still Cherishes Its Iron-Grated Windows

San Salvador, capital of El Salvador, still cherishes its iron-grated windows and the memories of a romantic past.

In grandma's day, the young blades of the village gave the girls the up-and-down in the evening paseo around the plaza. If a caballero saw an interesting little number, he followed her home, and proved his devotion by pacing back and forth before the bars for hours at a time. This practice was known as "playing the bear."

Now all that is changed. There's still bars on them that grills in San Salvador, but they don't mean anything. The señoritas no longer believe in bears; they know it's just another of granny's bedtime stories.

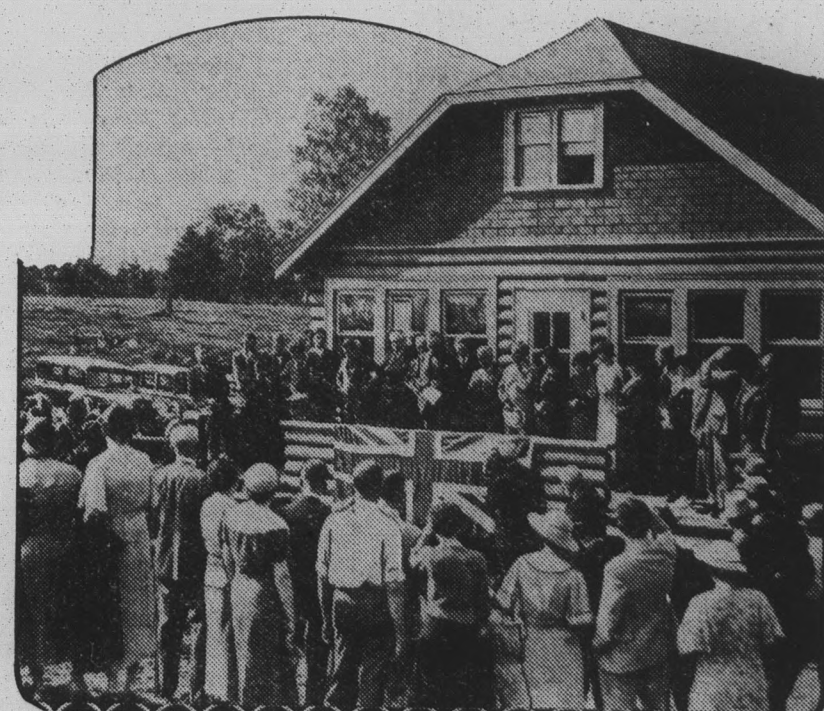

Do YOU Know—

That the first regular baseball game was played at Hoboken, N. J., June 19, 1846, between the Knickerbocker club of New York and the New York club (a picked team). Only four innings were played, as under the rules then existing, a game was won when either team made 21 aces (runs) or over on even innings.

CHAPTER V

Jean Gerard regarded the desk in the gun room at High Ledges with pursed lips and angry eyes.

"Gee, but you make me mad!" She addressed the piece of furniture as if it were maliciously responsible for her frustration. She wriggled a hairpin in the lock of the top drawer. Then with teeth set, she grasped the handles, jerked with all her strength. The drawer came out with a suddenness which sent her sprawling and scattered three letters from the desk onto the floor.

Ruefully she rubbed the back of her head. She knelt beside the drawer and eagerly examined its contents. There were several photographs of a pretty girl. One showed her in bouffant tulle on the back of a horse. Jean's eyes dilated.

"Circus rider!" she crooned. "Goody, I'll see one like her tomorrow." She turned the photograph over. On the back was scrawled:

"Miraculous escape. From Calico and Calloway to liberty and lo—Fondly, Milly."

"She's a cutie all right. I—" Jean gulped as a shadow fell across the photograph.

"Where's your uncle?"
The photograph fell from her hand and lay with piquant, smiling face upward as Jean stared at the scowling man who loomed over her.

"I—I—don't know. Shall I try to find him, Mr. Calloway?"

Len Calloway removed his glance from the pictures and letters on the floor long enough to glare at her.

"Tell him I want to talk with him. Scram!"

Frightened at the grayness of his face, Jean fled. She scurried through the different rooms. Called. No answer. She had better go back and tell Mr. Calloway.

As she entered the gun room, one of the long French windows banged.

"He's gone. I guess that's that." She dropped to her knees beside the drawer. Better put it back before anyone saw it. She scrambled up the contents. Where was the picture of the cutie circus rider? Gone. Had Mr. Calloway taken it? Why should he want it? Would her uncle be mad with her for having touched the desk?

"I'd better get a move on."

She hurriedly replaced the drawer, picked up the letters. Only two! There had been three when they fell. Had Mr. Calloway snatched one? What would he do with it? "Gee, have I started something?" she thought.

In the library after dinner, Rodney Gerard glanced at Jean speculatively as she bent demurely over a book. Her absorption was out of character. She was too quiet. She had been prying with rather frightening results; he recognized the symptoms.

He glanced about the room as he refilled his pipe. Good room. Big, yet not too full of things, mellow, dignified. Not too bad a place in which to spend part of a winter. He glanced at his sister-in-law knitting rapidly in the light of one of the softly shaded lamps. Not so restful. He was in for battle. He'd better go to it.

Mrs. Walter Gerard looked up. She laid down her knitting.

"I have planned to close the house

"El-e-phants Are Coming! Hold Your Horses!"

on Thursday, if that suits you, Rodney. The days are getting so short."

"You needn't bother to do that, Annie. I shall remain here for part of the winter. I have decided to thin about a thousand acres of woodland and it will require my personal oversight. You and Jean toddle along to New York as you planned."

"The idea! Of course I shan't desert you, Rodney. I can stay, at least until after Christmas; then my cousin, the ambassador, has asked me to visit him."

Gerard buckled on his armor of determination. He hated to hurt her, but he couldn't, he wouldn't have her under his feet, and that's where she would be.

"I appreciate your kindness, Annie, but Jim Armstrong, one of my room-mates at college, who is a forester, will arrive soon to look over the timber and advise me as to what should come out. I hate like the dickens to say it, you have been so kind to keep house for me this summer, but I would prefer not to have you here."

Jean flung herself at Gerard.
"Hey there, Kurious Kid, go slow. Want to push me into the fire?" The girl's grip tightened.

"Uncle Rod, please let me stay with you, please! I'm not going to school this winter anyway. I hate New York, and Mother and Father are always fighting, and I love to be with you, and I'll be a perfect lady, honest I will. Please let me stay. I'm—I'm always sort of peaceful with you."

Gerard's eyes were tender as he looked down at the pleading face. Peaceful. Poor, lonely kid. She did have a tough time. Not much fun living with her parents. Walter rarely came to High Ledges now. Was it too dull for him, or were there other reasons? Should he let Jean stay? He was fond of the funny little thing. Prue Schuyler was taking an interest in her; she was making her happier, more human than the impish child she had been.

"What say, Annie? Will you let Jean stay with me until after Christmas? No," he anticipated, as his sister-in-law started to speak. "It will upset my plans to have you here; besides, you should be in New York with Walter."

"Walter doesn't want me, either."

For the first time since he had known her, Rodney heard Annie Gerard acknowledge defeat. Mighty hard on her. Walter was a bad egg, of course, but she had a cruel tongue and was so affected. That didn't excuse Walt; a man should be true to his wife no matter how she developed—but—the gods be praised, the problem of being true to Annie wasn't his.

THE STORY FROM THE BEGINNING

Prudence Schuyler comes from New York to Prosperity Farm, inherited from her uncle, to make a new life for herself and her brother, David, whose health has been broken by tragedy. The second day on her farm Prue falls from the barn loft into the arms of Rodney Gerard, rich young man, who lives at High Ledges on the neighboring farm. There is at once a mutual attraction between the two, but Prudence decides to maintain a cool attitude toward him. She suspects men since her sister's husband ran away with her brother's wife, Len Calloway, a rival of Gerard, tries to buy the timber off Prue's land, but she dislikes his conceited attitude and contracts with Rod to dispose of the trees. On the evening Prue is expecting David from New York she is visited by Mrs. Walter Gerard and her thirteen-year-old daughter, Jean. They are hateful, curious persons and leave Prue rankled. A few days later Prudence comes in contact with them again when she accompanies Rod to his place. A clown comes, advertising a circus in a nearby town. Prue promises to accompany Rod and Jean to the circus.

"Look here, K. K., if I let you stay, will you solemnly promise not to pry into my affairs—or the affairs of the—the neighbors?"

Joy glowed beneath the tears. "I promise I'll be the finest girl ever, Uncle Rod."

"I'll give you a try. May she stay, Annie?"

"If you want her, Rodney. The doctor said she should live out of doors this winter, so perhaps she'll be better off here in the country."

"Then hustle to New York, send down warm clothes for her and the bill to me. Take the servants with you. I'll pay them for lost time. Jean and I will be off early, perhaps before you start."

"Off! Where?"

"There's a circus in the next town and we—we are going in a party."

"A party! I see. I think I know who the party will be. I wasn't born yesterday, Rodney."

How he detested her wink, Rodney thought, as he watched her leave the room. Jean slipped her arm through her uncle's.

"She's mad!" she observed in a strident whisper.

"Cut that out, K. K. Never criticize your mother. You make good or you'll be packed off to New York on the first train. Get me?"

"I will, Uncle Rod. Cross-my-throat-an'-hope-to-die. What time will we start for the circus? I'll be ready. I won't go to sleep for a minute tonight."

"I'll bet you won't. I'm not so old that I've forgotten the nights before your father and I went to the circus. Go to bed. Get going."

He watched her as she ran to the door.

"You sure have taken on responsibility," he reminded himself.

The next morning Rodney, with Jean snuggled in the roadster beside him, stopped before the red brick house. Prudence was waiting at the gate; her vivid lips were curved in a radiant smile.

"Good morning, Jean. I'm thrilled! My heart is so light it's bouncing along on balloon tires. Will there be room for me on the front seat, Mr. Gerard?"
"Cut out that 'Mr.'—Gorgeous. It doesn't elick with a circus. Rod—to you. Of course there's room in front. Hop in."

Jean bounced in her seat. "Hurry up, Miss Prue. Let's go, Uncle Rod!"

The main street of the town was already lined with crowds when they reached it; it boiled with children, echoed with the cries of fakirs, blazed with mammoth black and red posters.

Gerard parked the roadster on a side street. Jean's feet barely touched the ground as between Prudence and her uncle she was swept along in the hurrying crowd. She stopped short in front of a poster showing an equestrienne in rose-color tulle skirts and a brief bodice, with the caption:

MADEMOISELLE MILLE

"Why, there's my cutie!"
Gerard looked at her sharply as she bit off the next word.

"What do you mean, K. K.? You—" "Buy the kid a balloon! Buy the kid a balloon! Say, listen! What's a circus to a kid without a balloon?"

The hatless man with an unkempt mane of black hair and a flock of colored balloons straining at their leashes, blocked the way. Jean's eyes were like dancing stars.

"May I have one, Uncle Rod?"
"Sure. Choose the color. Have one, Prue?"

"Of course. I want that fat green one which looks as if it were about to burst from its own importance."

What fun she was! How friendly she had been on the drive over. Had she buried the hatchet she seemed always to have up her sleeve for him? She was so alive mentally and physically. Life never could get one by the throat if one had a girl like her with whom to travel through the years, Rodney thought.

"It's coming! The parade's coming!" Prudence gripped Gerard's arm. "Hear that bugle, Jean?"

Rodney pushed Jean in front of him. Crushed his arm against his side to keep Prue's hand there. Far down the street was a restless sea of waving plumes, shining helmets, brilliant flags. Music billowed forward. Snare. Drums. Cornets. Clarinets. He said to Prudence:

"The thrill of the Big Top. It's got

Jean's excited voice cut into her uncle's. She darted forward. Rodney grabbed for her. Missed. The motorcycle clown, looking back in a parting wisecrack, shot forward at full speed. The crowd shrieked. Chicot caught the girl. Flung her back with all his force. The panic-stricken cyclist crashed into him.

Aeons after, it seemed to Rodney Gerard, the physician, bending over

"Be a Good—Girl, Milly."

Jean's limp figure on the black hair-cloth sofa in a nearby house, straightened.

"She's coming out of it all right. Prolonged faint from shock. Better get her home as soon as she can sit up."

Prudence whispered:
"Don't look so agonized, Rodney. See, her eyelids are quivering."

"I'm all shot to pieces over this. I—I didn't know how much I cared for the Kurious—" Gerard choked on the words.

Across the room on the floor where they had dropped him lay the clown. Rodney Gerard bent over the twisted body, laid his hand on the dirt-streaked shoulder.

"You saved her, Chicot. Can you hear? You—"

"Let me in! Where's Grandpop? Let me in!"

A girl, in the cotton velvets and plumed hat of a circus rider on parade, burst into the room. Patches of rouge stood out like fever spots on her colorless face. Her black eyes were distended with fright. With a shriek she flung herself to her knees beside Chicot, put her arms under the old clown's shoulders, and lifted him until his head rested against her breast.

A spasm of pain contorted the grotesque face. The lids under their painted brows opened. He tried to put his hand over hers. It wavered futilely and dropped. His whisper seemed to fill the still room.

"Be a good—girl, Milly. You'll be a great—rider—if you keep at it. I've kept you—with me—you're safer—now. I—must—get up. Time—for—my act—"

The last faint word fluttered in a sigh. Chalky lids drooped over dull eyes. The crumpled figure settled lower in the girl's arms.

"Grandpop! Grandpop! Don't leave me! I can't bear it to have you hurt! First I hurt you and now—"

The physician gently loosened the girl's arms and eased the body of the old clown to the floor. Rodney Gerard laid his hand on her shoulder.

Confederation Articles

and U. S. Constitution

The articles of confederation conferred upon congress none but the delegated powers and recognized the absolute sovereignty of the states, notes a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Aside from the right to make war and peace, regulate foreign intercourse, receive and send ambassadors, control and coinage of money, and settle disputed boundaries, congress had no power to act without the consent of nine of the states, each casting one ballot. It could not levy taxes, and before 1787 the war debt had destroyed the financial reputation of the United States abroad.

The states were divided in their interests, and at the last Colonial congress but eight of the states sent delegates. Not the least of the weaknesses of the confederation was the nonprovision of a chief magistrate, or for a national judiciary.

To meet these needs it was found necessary to frame a new Constitution, systematically organizing a permanent form of government.

This document arranges the powers of government under three heads—legislative, executive and judicial—and places the supreme power in the people of the whole country, instead of vainly endeavoring to maintain a multitude of independent states. It replaced a disjointed confederacy of jealous states with a nation.

Psychologist Declares

Flapper's Dizzy Days Over

Farewell to the flapper. Her dizzy days are over. Comely she was, and full of pep. But she knew little or nothing about brakes, and she has skidded out of sight, according to Dr. Ernest L. Talbert, psychologist at the University of Cincinnati. In fact, the little miss is so far outmoded that one might almost expect a return of the staid days when the McGuffey readers were the standard literature of the family, says the Literary Digest.

Doctor Talbert based his studies on the character of magazines over the years since the flapper walked on the stage and took her last cue. "Several recent studies of American life from 1890 on show startling changes," he reported to a discussion group at Cincinnati. "A statistical investigation of articles printed in periodicals reveals a preoccupation with the changing conditions surrounding the family, with divorce, birth control, and sex morals. Approval of more modern habits show an upward curve from 1922 to 1929.

"Since then comes a drop. A more conservative tone appears. The reign of the flapper is over. Periodicals of wide circulation are more conventional and severe in their professed code than the intellectual organs and women's magazines."

Villages Buried by Sand on Lake Michigan Shore

Giant sand dunes that travel by day and night have overcome and almost obliterated a number of small towns that once dotted the eastern shore of Lake Michigan. At Grand Haven, a few rotting piles are all that is left of the once extensive warehouses, docks and trestles of a railway and steamer terminal. Happy Hollow, the village in a small valley high in the hills back of a terminal where the workers lived, was abandoned half a century ago. Twenty years ago some of the roofs still could be seen, but they are gone now. Mills, camps and docks have disappeared along with villages.

Venice Garage Biggest

At the Venice end of the new bridge connecting the Italian city to the mainland has been erected the largest garage in Europe. It has a capacity of 2,000 cars. There is no room for automobiles to park in Venice, hence the size of the storage place.

VOTE REGARDLESS OF PROPAGANDA

When you go to vote next Tuesday, every citizen, regardless of party affiliation, who is concerned with good government, should go to the polls and exercise a conscientious judgment to select the best men, who can be relied on for their integrity in conduct of the office to which they aspire.

Unfortunately, it is very hard for us to know which is the better way. Demagogues and political tricks often mislead and confuse those who do not make a thorough study of the problems, and who take the word of those who make it their business to influence voters.

An office holder is the servant of the people and should carry out his duties fairly, reasonably and impartially.

Passion and prejudice should not control voting. The cause of good, clean government is not served by those seeking to stir up emotions and rant against indefinite evils, hoping that out of the confusion and excitement they can get the votes and occupy an office.

The ordinary citizen, seeking to vote for the good of his or her state, oftentimes has a difficult problem, such as confronts us at the present time. This problem should be faced honestly and solved rightly as far as possible. Let the welfare of the State, the County and the City, be the prime factor in determining how you cast your ballots November 6th.

Many of the women of this busy world, under the stress of poverty and idleness, have taken the frugal kitchen step of "learning to bake." Perhaps many thousands will "thank their stars" that they are masters of the culinary art, and say that "no great loss without some small gain." There can be no more serious indictment upon society and the home than that of culinary ignorance of the fair sex. It used to be generations ago, that every mother, not only was a professional in the art of cooking and preparing foods, but she devotedly taught her daughters its rudiments early in their teens. They believed in the "Rolling-Pin Route" to happiness. Today the bakery thrives, as very little home baking seems to be done. In most of relief work in many homes it was learned of families unable to use the Red Cross flour given to them because no one knew how to bake. They had always purchased their bread and had never known the joys of home-made bread or cake.

Even the innocent honey bee needed NRA relief. Loans are to be made to apriary owners for the purchase of sugar as feed until the flowers bloom once more in the spring. This comes as a distinct surprise, for California with her abundance of wild flowers has never failed to meet the honey emergency, although honey famines are known to other states. But the wild plumage has been blighted and through dearth of blooms and droughts there will be a shortage for the fall and winter. By spring the honey bees will be singing their merry songs again. Meanwhile honey-lovers will be paying a higher price for their supply. As a health food the demand for honey promises to be somewhat heavy but the investment for the table will be a great benefit at any price.

We are still in need of the lesson from a smile. Such a lesson is also the language from the heart. Unless the mind and soul are in harmony with the laws of nature, the smile is as impossible as living without breathing. The attitude for a smile is a fine achievement possessed not by too many, but they are the victorious. President Roosevelt has shown the value and beauty of a smile even in the tense moments of the times. This is why he is a "good mixer." He smiles and smiles until it has become his second nature. The smile helps to make that gentle, kind and courteous demeanor. If you have lost the art of smiling, get before a mirror and practice until you find it again, then keep it for it is worth a million to you!

Generous Russia looks us straight in the eye and says that she will pay up her war debt if America will loan her the money. It is not likely that this foreign country feels very conscience stricken under the circumstances, but, on the other hand, more like working a big political bluff. No doubt all debtor European powers would like to do the same. This would be about as sensible as trying to lift yourself by your bootstraps, instead of taking the elevator. Russia would like to safeguard our confidence in her, but tries some strange statesmanship to gain her standing.

TROOP 56 POINT LOMA GIRL SCOUTS OF AMERICA

The home of Mrs. Otila P. Shields was turned into a greenwood forest for the Hallowe'en party Oct. 26, of the Point Loma Girl Scouts and their guests. The library was the den of the old witch (Lucia Clement) who foretold the future of the young folks. Feather football, black cat hoodoo and brush and cock relay races paved the way for hearty but dainty refreshments.

Mesdames James Oliver, Oliver P. Shields and Beatrice L. Fish acted as assistant hostesses to the troop.

Sunday evening the troop visited Dr. Campbell's church in San Diego where they enacted the candle ceremony. Dr. Marvin Eby will speak to the girls on a community service November 1.

The candle ceremony was presented at the First Congregational church in San Diego, Oct. 28.

The girls gave a Hallowe'en party on Oct. 26 at the home of Mrs. Shields.

We hope every organization interested in the social education of our children will get back of Miss Williams and put the pack back in the thriving condition of the past. A Brownie education gives an excellent foundation for scouting in the older girl.

Governor Merriam's Program

IDENTS of California face a far reaching political decision on next Tuesday, when they vote for Governor.

making advantage of public distress, and preaching a doctrine of class hatred and antagonism, an extreme Socialist captured the Democratic party's nomination for Governor, and is now proposing a radical, impractical scheme.

On the other hand, Governor Merriam,—a capable and conscientious American, dependable in his proven devotion to the public welfare,—offers a constructive plan of liberal Americanism.

Here is Governor Merriam's own statement:—

For Those Who Want Jobs, I Will Strive:

1. To bring security of employment through definite encouragement of business, industry and agriculture.
2. To insure and your family against loss of work, by adopting a practical and adequate plan of unemployment insurance.
3. To uphold your right to bargain collectively for increased shorter hours, and improved working condition.
4. To discourage pay cuts in both public and private employment, and encourage establishment of a wage scale providing a decent living on American standards.
5. To fearlessly oppose radical or Communistic efforts on the one hand, or Capitalistic efforts on the other, to destroy organized labor.

(Note: The Governor, under the leadership of Governor Merriam, is now developing a workable plan of unemployment insurance and will report in January.)

For Those Who Want Jobs, I Will Fight:

1. To see that man, woman or child in California goes without food or shelter.
2. To discourage as far as it is within my power, the coming to California of more unemployed to compete with your efforts to find work.
3. To create jobs through the medium of public works, development of our great natural resources, constructive effort to promote the upbuilding of business, agriculture and industry.

(Note: As of this pledge, the Legislature at the special session Governor Merriam's recommendation, adopted a bill for the relief of unemployment and distress.)

To Those Who Want to Work, I Dedicate Myself:

1. To safeguard and expand the State's great humanitarian work for the sick, the disabled, the orphaned and the aged.
2. To heartily commend the old age pensions and commend the Townships to Congress and the National Administration.

(Note: In accordance with this undertaking the Governor and the Legislature have already petitioned the President and Congress to supplement the State's present effective pension system by enacting a Federal old age pension law.)

Governor Merriam's record during the five months he has been in office, his character and sixteen years of service, assure us an able, practical administration.

He will preserve the principles of reward for hard work and individual effort that have been the foundation of our industry. He will keep California a state you will be proud to live in, and proud to have your own up in.

At the polls Tuesday. Vote for Frank F. Merriam for Governor and George J. Hatfield for Lieutenant-Governor. Give them the support they will need in accomplishing their constructive program, by voting for the Republican candidates for the State Assembly and Senate.

To California Taxpayers, I Will Recognize:

1. That human needs must come before all other considerations; that property owners in financial distress must be given every opportunity to save their homes and farms.
2. I will see that public utility corporations bear their full share of taxes, without loading extra charges on to the public.
3. That all Citizens of California will share equitably in the benefits of economy and simplification of government, which are a definite part of my program.

(Note: Governor Merriam obtained the approval of the Legislature at the recent special session giving relief to home and farm owners from the burden of delinquent taxes and special assessments as well as from the immediate danger of loss of their properties through foreclosure of mortgages and trust deeds.)

To Educators and Teachers, I Propose:

1. To do everything in my power to maintain the present high standard of education in California. I am thoroughly committed to a continuation of the constitutional guarantees for the public schools; to teachers' civil service; to the maintenance and extensions of the teachers' retirement fund; to part-time and adult education.

To Members of All Parties, I Will:

1. Call into the service of the State the best type of citizenship.
2. Carry out a non-partisan, truly progressive, and All-California administration during the term of my office as Governor.

Frank F. Merriam
GOVERNOR OF CALIFORNIA

As Lieutenant-Governor, I will, if elected, do all in my power to carry to a successful conclusion the foregoing program of Governor Merriam.

Epic Plan Not Feasible Says Assessor Johnson

(Political Advertisement)

Upton Sinclair's Epic plan will not and cannot give jobs to all unemployed in California at the kind of labor to which they are accustomed as he has said it will, much less provide like jobs for the 5,000,000 from other states whom he has invited here and are already on their way, according to James Hervey Johnson, county assessor and a close student of economics.

"Everyone working in the state system will be free to select the kind of work he wishes to do—provided, of course, he is competent to do it," says Sinclair on page 18 of his pamphlet "Epic Answers". Johnson said in commenting upon the situation confronting the people under the Socialist-Democrat's program. "He further says each will be permitted to work as many or as few hours as he likes."

"The Socialist-Democrat candidate's vivid imagination has been working overtime, it is evident by this single statement of his, and a review of his plan's possibilities."

"IT CAN'T BE DONE."
"His scheme calls only for farms, factories and retail stores. In 1929, California had 290,000 workers, about 75 percent of whom are still employed in the state's 10,600 factories."

"If all of them were put back at their former occupations, making goods to exchange with farmers for food as Sinclair proposes, but 72,500 of the jobless could be taken care of at most."

"There are about 400,000 unemployed wage earners in California now, not counting the Sinclair-invited influx from other states, now estimated at 100,000 persons."

"About 235,000 Californians, therefore, would remain to be taken care of in Sinclair's retail stores, and by the additional farming, manufacturing and clerical work the communities would call for."

"IT CAN'T BE DONE!"

LOCAL FOLK OUT OF LUCK

"The local jobless will be in a sorry plight if they vote Sinclair in on his promise to give them work in idle factories."

"There are but three in San Diego county, and if remodeled and equipped, they could only care for 200 workers at the best. Consequently, any thinking person will see they must move their families and chattels elsewhere in the state if they expect factory work. And upon arriving at this other town, what chance will they, coming from this county, have with the unemployed of that particular county to get work? None whatsoever!"

"Oh, yes," you say, "but if there are no idle factories, Sinclair will rent empty factory buildings and start plants up for us!"

"San Diego jobless who are banking on such a promise are due for another rude jolt, too, I am afraid, as there are no empty buildings here available for factory use!"

Muehleisen Seeks Support Entire Republican Ticket

(Political Advertisement)

With time growing short before the Nov. 6 election necessity of county Republicans, Democrats and Progressives supporting the entire Republican ticket to combat the Epic menace to the state is emphasized by Adolph Muehleisen, chairman of Republican county central committee.

"We feel assured San Diegans are alive to the Epic plan danger and will elect Merriam and Hatfield," Muehleisen said, "but the need of putting a governor and lieutenant governor into office without necessary legislative support is not generally appreciated. The leaders' hands must not be tied if they are to bring California back to a sound business, economic and social basis."

The state Republican ticket follows:

GOVERNOR
Frank F. Merriam
LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR
George J. Hatfield
SENATE
Col. Ed Fletcher
ASSEMBLY
Ralph W. Wallace, 78th district
Ed L. Head, 79th district
Charles W. Stream, 80th district
SECRETARY OF STATE
Frank C. Jordan
CONTROLLER
TREASURER
Charles G. Johnson
ATTORNEY GENERAL
U. S. Webb
BOARD OF EQUALIZATION
Harvey G. Cattell

San Diegans also will have an opportunity to vote for the following Republican national representatives on their state ballot:

U. S. SENATE
Hiram W. Johnson
George Burnham

Col. Ed Fletcher, candidate for state senate, said: "As the Republican nominee for state senator I consider it vital that the entire Republican ticket be elected. Whoever becomes governor must have the backing and support of the legislature, otherwise he is handicapped and chaos is the result. I am convinced that San Diego county will go strongly Republican and the entire state ticket be elected."

Ralph Wallace said: "If I am elected to the State legislature for the 78th assembly district I sincerely hope that Ed Fletcher, Charles W. Stream and Ed Head will be in Sacramento for I know they will cooperate with me for constructive legislation for San Diego county."

"I am asking re-election to the assembly from the 80th district because of my legislative experience during my first term. My desire to serve every section of my territory. My grasp of its problems and my determination to be the assemblyman of the taxpayers and not of any special interest. clique or organization," said Charles W. Stream. "I stand for a sharp reduction in taxes through careful legislation and efficient government; for the abolition of useless and outworn adjuncts to the state government; for the protection of the southern part of the state, and for unremitting effort on my part for the good of the 80th district."

HOTEL MEN FAVOR

No citizen will wilfully the forward march to 1935, when the California international exposition lured million tourists to from all over the world.

Yet, danger looms ahead for Robert W. Mosher, Greeters' president, and the San Diego Hotelmen's special committee.

"Proposition No. 13 to be voted on Nov. 6, is the menace to not only the welfare of San Diegans but the vast, conglomeration who will be the citizens next year," Mosher said.

"This so-called local option which permits one or more to vote bone dry, must bring back the bootlegger, speakeasies, make graft again, all of which we have gone forever with repeal."

"If Proposition No. 13 is defeated, innocent law-abiding citizens alike will become criminals caught within a dry precinct even a bottle of 3.2 beer possession or their automobiles believe it should be overruled."

San Diego hotelmen are in favor of Proposition No. 13, giving them the right to serve beverages in hotel dining rooms, because it is a sane, rigid yet impartial liquor law. They are both pledged, in their platforms, adopted at Sacramento, to an effective state civil service—a "merit system" instead of the "spoils system" in the selection of rightful place as a world state workers.

VOTE "NO" ON PROPOSITION No. 13

—the PROHIBITION or so-called local option proposal

It seeks to bring back to California an aggravated form of the Wright Act, repealed less than two years ago by a vote of 1,459,835 to 658,351.

IT WOULD MAKE YOU A CRIMINAL if you possess, transport through, sell, or offer for sale or manufacture beverages containing more than 1/2 of 1% alcohol in a single dry precinct.

It would decrease State and National Revenue.

It would increase unemployment

It would decrease purchases, such as barley, hops, lumber, etc.

CALIFORNIA TOLERANCE LEAGUE

VOTE "YES" ON PROPOSITION NUMBER 7

On one issue, at least, both the Republican and Democratic parties agree in the present contest.

They are both pledged, in their platforms, adopted at Sacramento, to an effective state civil service—a "merit system" instead of the "spoils system" in the selection of rightful place as a world state workers.

Both parties recognize that a strengthened civil service will reduce the cost of government and give necessary protection to the taxpayers, as well as the workers.

Proposition No. 7, the State Civil Service Amendment, which appears on the November ballot, deserves the wholehearted support of every taxpayer who wants dollar value for every dollar expended. This amendment will place the administration of civil service in the hands of a non-partisan board. It will abolish exemptions, which offer a loop-hole for political appointment, and will also eliminate the "temporary appointment" evil. It is a necessary protection against unfit, unqualified "political employees."

Proposition No. 7 should be approved by an overwhelming majority.

Junior Chamber Favors Control of Liquor

United in common zeal for early economic recovery of California, the young business men of this state— from the Oregon line to the Mexican border— this week voiced their solid endorsement of Proposition 2 and against Proposition 13 on the November ballot, according to advices received by the Southern California Business Men's association.

In an official move during convention, the California State Junior Chamber of Commerce, headed by President Bert W. Levit of San Francisco, endorsed Proposition 2, which will provide California with sane, enforceable liquor regulation, and opposed Proposition 13, the "bone-dry" local option with its threatened return of prohibition.

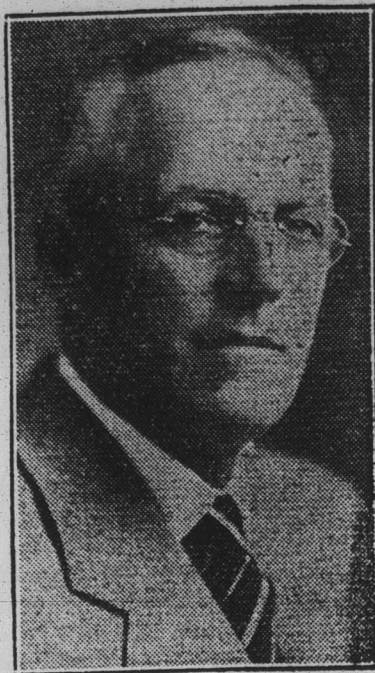

The Junior Chamber action came on the heels of a statement from Fred Stewart, militant member of the State Board of Equalization, in which he declared the present liquor law was not enforceable.

"History has proven that the liquor business must be controlled," Stewart had said. "It cannot be so supervised if the present law is continued. It is essential that the people vote 'yes' on Proposition 2."

"At present our hands are practically tied in the matter of issuance of licenses. Anyone who can prove he is possessed of 'good moral character' can secure a license for any location in the state, even if his place of business is next to a school or church."

Endorsement of Proposition 2 by the Junior Chamber adds another vast organization to the long list of fraternal, labor, improvement and other state-wide groups backing the program for prosperity. They are also opposing Proposition 13 because it would return prohibition, vice, bootlegging and graft—conditions voted out of existence by the people two years ago.

CATTELL SAVES SCHOOLS, ALSO TAXPAYERS

With women pre-eminently practical, particularly politically, adda significance attends the united Republican-Democratic county-wide feminine support of the continued re-election of H. G. Cattell, as member for Southern California on the State Board of Equalization.

So say Capt. W. C. Crandall, C. D. McClellan, Al Waibel, George Beech, D. W. Bird, T. C. Hammond, Frank Forward, Virgilio Bruschi and other representative members of the county's "Keep Cattell Organization of 1900."

"Perhaps never before in California's political history has there been so vital need of practical experience, sound judgment. Perhaps never before has a state official scored so impressive a record of practical experience, technical knowledge and results for the taxpayers as has Cattell. His continued service to California is of utmost importance, with such additional Board duties scheduled as re-assessing all public utility properties so that they may be returned to the county and city tax rolls, thereby reducing the taxes of the private property holder.

Through the efforts of Cattell, the Board took $60,000,000.00 of school taxes out of the counties; returned public utility properties to the value of $1,300,000.00 to the county tax rolls and succeeded in setting the record for all states in that not a single California school was forced to close on account of lack of funds."

MERRIAM FAVORS CIVIL SERVICE

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 29.—Governor Frank F. Merriam today issued a strong appeal to California voters to support Proposition No. 7, the State Civil Service Amendment, declaring that the measure will "greatly increase the efficiency and permanency of our state personnel, with a resultant saving to the State and the taxpayer."

Both the Democratic and Republican parties, in their recent conventions at Sacramento, also endorsed the principle of a strengthened and extended civil service.

Governor Merriam's statement follows:

"In announcing the selection of Earl Warren, Will C. Wood and E. Manchester Boddy to write the official argument for the Voters' Pamphlet in behalf of Proposition No. 7, the State Civil Service Amendment, I am happy to state that no group or individual has appeared with a request to write an opposing argument to the amendment.

"Proposition No. 7, by extending and improving the operation of the state government, will, in my opinion, greatly increase the efficiency and permanency of our state personnel, with a resultant saving to the State and the taxpayers. This measure deserves the wholehearted support of California voters."

Veterans Bond Issue Said Self Liquidating

Los Angeles, Nov. 1—Confidence that the electorate of California will again give approval to a bond issue for the purchase of homes and farms for veterans of this state, was voiced here today by J. G. V. Clarke, Southern California campaign manager.

"This bond issue," said Clarke, "calling for $30,000,000 is Proposition No. 1 on the November ballot. It will enable the California Veterans' Welfare Board to carry out its program inaugurated in 1921 where-by veterans of this state can purchase homes and farms."

"Voters have previously authorized three bond issues for $50,000,000 with which sum approximately 12,000 veterans have obtained homes or farms. Passage of No. 1 will enable the board to care for 7,000 additional applicants and if the government advances $60,000,000 to the board, as has been recommended by two aides of Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, 21,000 veterans in all, will be in position to obtain homes or farms."

"The appealing feature of the entire veterans program is the fact that never have previous bond issues cost the taxpayers one cent, nor will Proposition No. 1. On the contrary the state has actually realized a profit through the administration of these bonds."

THE THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY: POINT LOMA

"That man is not one but two, that there is within everyone of us higher impulses and lower ones, each fighting to conquer the other, each trying to absorb and direct the man's life, is a fact of universal experience" declared Mrs. Grace Knoche when she delivered a lecture on "Man is not One, but Two" at Theosophical headquarters last Sunday afternoon.

"The great key" continued the speaker, "is fairly stated by Theosophy. It is that man is a composite being, the result not of one but of two separate and distinct lines of operation; one spiritual and the other material. The mind, as is obvious, is dual in its nature, one part of it tending upward, the other downward, and between these two forces stands the Man himself, the dual consciousness, oscillating between them. The purpose of life is to stop the oscillation and transmute the lower impulses into the higher life. All that we suffer, all that we are, all our failures, all our successes are hinged to this fact that man is not one but two."

At three o'clock next Sunday afternoon, Dr. Henry T. Edge will discuss the subject of "Theosophy and Religion." This speaker needs no introduction to local audiences, and on this occasion the lecturer will be assisted in answering questions by Professor C. J. Ryan. All are welcome.

A Lotus-Circle for children will be held at the same hour.

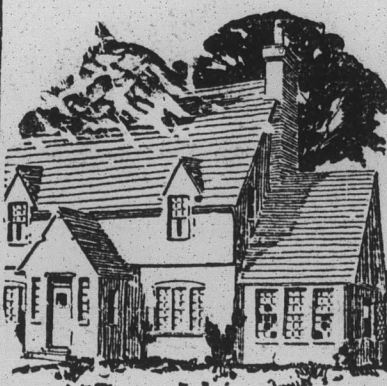

VOTE YES On Proposition No. 1 THE VETERANS HOME and FARM BOND ACT A Recovery Measure Costing Taxpayers Nothing

Its purpose is to provide for a bond issue of $30,000,000 to enable the veterans' welfare board to continue the present plan of assisting California War Veterans to acquire farms or homes without cost to the taxpayers. The act calls for no appropriation, but only use of state's credit.

The money from the present proposed issue will go to work at once purchasing property, relieving unemployment and creating business for contractors; lumbermen, plumbers, painters and all others engaged in the building industry; the building of homes will create a market for furniture, fixtures and household equipment.

Proposition No. 1 should be adopted for the following reasons:

1. THE PROGRAM HAS BEEN IN SUCCESSFUL OPERATION FOR THIRTEEN YEARS;
2. ALL BOND PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST HAVE BEEN PAID TO DATE;
3. 11,640 HOMES AND FARMS HAVE BEEN ACQUIRED;
4. A FOUR MILLION DOLLAR RESERVE GUARANTEES THE ECONOMIC SOUNDNESS OF THE PROGRAM;
5. THE PROGRAM HAS NEVER COST THE TAXPAYERS ONE CENT AND NEVER WILL;
6. TWENTY THOUSAND APPLICATIONS ON FILE AND PRIOR FUNDS HAVE BEEN COMPLETELY EXHAUSTED;
7. UNEMPLOYMENT WILL BE RELIEVED,
8. BUSINESS WILL BE STIMULATED, RECOVERY WILL BE AIDED AND FAMILIES WILL BE HOUSED BY A TESTED AND TRIED SELF-LIQUIDATING PLAN;
9. THE PROCEEDS OF THIS ISSUE WILL GO INTO CIRCULATION IMMEDIATELY, CREATING WORK AND OFFERING RELIEF DURING THE WINTER PERIOD OF UNEMPLOYMENT.
10. PURCHASERS ARE TAXED FOR THEIR EQUITY IN PROPERTIES ACQUIRED AND TAX RETURNS ARE INCREASED OVER THE AMOUNT PAID ON VACANT PROPERTY.
10. UPON ALL PROPERTY PURCHASED BY THIS ISSUE, DELINQUENT TAXES, SEWER AND STREET ASSESSMENTS WILL BE PAID BEFORE THE STATE TAKES TITLE.

KING ALEXANDER MURDERED BY TERRORISTS — BARGAINING PLAN OF GENERAL MOTORS

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union

TWO men of great importance in the maintenance of peace in Europe were removed from the scene by the bullets of the assassin. Petrus Kalemen, who slew King Alexander of Yugoslavia and Louis Barthou, French foreign minister, in Marseilles, "Another Sarejevo?" was the question in every mind, and, indeed, there was some slight danger that the crime would start another great war. Alexander was just beginning a "good will" visit in France, which was closely tied up with Barthou's plan for an accord between France and Italy, and Barthou was soon to go to Rome to further the scheme. Yugoslavia is allied to France but is not at all friendly to Italy, and Alexander hated Mussolini personally, believing that the duke gave moral support to the rebellious Croats. But the king did not want war and was willing to help along the proposed accord if it was not inimical to his country.

If trouble does follow after the assassinations it probably will start with revolution in Yugoslavia. Only by assuming and exercising dictatorial powers was Alexander able to keep peace in the hodgepodge that comprises the kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, otherwise Yugoslavia, and it is not certain that there is anyone else there who can do it. Civil war might tempt some other nation to intervene and grab part of the realm, and in that case a general conflict might be precipitated.

Alexander's eldest son, Peter, who was in school in England, was promptly proclaimed king and, being only eleven years old, will rule under a regency of three men who were named in the political will of the murdered monarch. Whether these three can hold the kingdom intact is a question. Only the Serbs are really loyal to the royal house, though all the people had admired the strength and bravery of Alexander, whose life had been attempted four times before.

Prince Paul, cousin of Alexander, is at the head of the regency and he is considered fairly capable and is well liked. His two colleagues have been rather prominent in the government, but they are not Serbs.

The death of Alexander was held especially important to Germany by the statesmen of that country, for they had looked to him to curb to a considerable extent the alleged ambitions of Mussolini. He was considered a close friend of the reich and a potential ally.

France was not only worried by the possibility of trouble in the Balkans, but also deeply mourned the death of Barthou, one of her ablest statesmen and, indeed, one of the ablest in Europe. He had been working assiduously on his pet scheme of a security pact for eastern Europe; and, although Germany had scored him for trying to build a diplomatic and economic ring about the reich, last June he personally negotiated an accord between France and Germany that was believed to give assurance of peace.

Petrus Kalemen, the assassin, who was quickly killed by the French police, was found to have been traveling on a forged Czech passport. Two men who accompanied him on his mission of death were captured near the Swiss border and another was being hunted down in Fontainebleau forest.

From the confessions of those captured and from the investigations of the police of France and Belgrade it was learned that Kalemen was a notorious Macedonian terrorist named Valda Georgeff Tschernocemskz who killed two Bulgarian political leaders several years ago. He and his associates in the plot were directed in their murderous work by a mysterious "master mind," and the authorities assert this man, whom the assassins knew as "the doctor," controlled the activities of several distinct terrorist bands that were ignorant of one another's moves.

The French police were convinced that at least nine persons were involved in the assassination plot. Their chief interest centered on one Egon Kramer, whom they believed to be the chief of the gang and who had not been caught, and a beautiful young woman known to the prisoners as Marie Vjudroch whose trail was picked up in a hotel in Aix-en-Provence. The woman is supposed to have brought from Germany the two weapons, virtual submachine guns, used by the killer.

Premier Doumergue's French cabinet was considerably changed as a result of the tragedy in Marseilles. Albert Sarraut, minister of the interior, and Henri Cheron, minister of justice, resigned and were replaced respectively by Paul Marchandeau and Henri Lemery. Laval was made minister of foreign affairs to succeed Barthou and his place as minister of colonies was given to Louis Rollin.

FRANCE lost another of her elder statesmen in the death of Raymond Poincare, who was president from 1913 to 1920 and returned later to public service as premier. It was during that period that he seized the Ruhr in an effort to compel Germany to pay the war reparations to France. Poincare was born in Lorraine, and that fact explained in part his unrelenting attitude toward Germany in dealing with post-war problems. Entering political life in 1887, he was mixed up in many prominent "affaires" and made a record as an intense patriot and a liberal republican. In 1926, when he was called out of retirement, he succeeded in saving the country from its disastrous financial state. Poincare was seventy-four years old when he died, and had been in poor health for some years.

NAZI dictatorship over religion in Germany was bitterly attacked by 16,000 Protestant pastors from their pulpits, despite the presence in every church of secret police and spies. The congregations cheered and shed tears as they were told that a crisis in the rebellion against the tyranny of Reichsbishop Mueller was nearing a crisis. Mueller and Dr. August Jaeger, commissioner of Protestant churches in Prussia, were held responsible for the "triumph of violence and hypocrisy" in a manifesto distributed to congregations.

"Through Mueller and Jaeger Satan does his work," the manifesto said. "The church regime has nullified the gospel. It has violated the constitutional church government, and is using political force to gain its end. It splits Bavaria's unified church into two parts, but still it talks of unity. It denies the Ten Commandments and employs lies against truth and robbery against justice. Still it talks of Bible and creed."

"Caprice and falsehood have gained the upper hand in the church."

Growth of the semi-military forces placed at the disposal of Hitler was revealed by Minister of Labor Seldte in a speech at Dresden.

"One hundred and fifty thousand youths of other boys' organizations have joined Hitler Youth," he declared, "and 314,000 comrades of the active Steel Helmets and 400,000 of the regular Steel Helmets placed themselves at the disposal of the Storm Troopers. The remaining Steel Helmets joyously joined the Nazi organization."

FIRST shot in the coming contest between the automobile manufacturers and the American Federation of Labor was fired by the General Motors corporation in the form of an offer to its 130,000 employees of its own plan for collective bargaining. In a letter sent to every worker President Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., said: "We of the General Motors recognize 'collective bargaining' as a constructive step forward, both for the employees and the management. Regardless of any obligations that may exist, we propose not only to continue the idea, but to develop it."

A. P. Sloan, Jr.

The plan, which actually is already in effect, was designed to meet all requirements of section 7A of the National Industrial Recovery act. Though the company in its communication did not mention the A. F. of L., it declared that "membership in a labor union or other type of labor or employee organization does not in itself establish the right of any such union or other organization to represent employees in collective bargaining negotiations. Representatives for such purpose must have been specifically chosen by the employees they are to represent and the fact of such choice must be established."

Employees must be given complete freedom in setting up collective bargaining organizations and choosing representatives, the company declared. The management may, however, assist any employee organization in plans for employees' mutual benefit, provided that in the determination of the right of employees to participate in the benefits there is no discrimination by management on the ground of affiliation with any labor organization. Collective bargaining was defined as "a method of intercommunication and negotiation between employees and management for maintenance of harmonious and co-operative relations through mutual understanding and agreement with respect to terms and conditions of employment."

Under the General Motors plan, routine matters within authority of the foreman or supervisor in immediate contact should be settled by him as expeditiously as possible. If it is outside his authority, the matter is to be referred up through the organization until it reaches an executive who can act. The corporation emphasized that it will not submit to arbitration any point where compromise might injure the long-term interests of the business. An impartial, fact-finding agency, however, may aid in settling questions of fact, it added.

TWELVE hundred coal miners at Pecs, Hungary, won a sensational fight for better wages, risking their lives on the outcome. They imprisoned themselves far underground for days, declaring they would die there voluntarily unless the employers would raise their pay, which had been only $2 a week. Food sent down by their friends was returned, and many of the men were crazed and nearly dead before the company was forced by the government to make a settlement the workers would accept.

The owners agreed to eliminate a wage cut, to raise the working time from two to three days a week, and to pay a bonus of $3 a man to help tide over the winter.

GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR, chief of staff and now in command of the G. H. Q. combat air force and also of the ground forces, is planning to develop a fighting fleet of super battle planes. The first step will be the organization of the G. H. Q. air force of at least 1,000 planes grouped in five "wings" based on both coasts and in the Middle West. This would bring the army corps up to about 2,300 planes, making an aerial fighting fleet approximately the equal of any in the world.

"All air forces, in spite of the incessant talk of disarmament and the efforts made at Geneva to curtail them," General MacArthur says, "are increasing. The whole trend throughout the world has been to increase aerial forces. Weapons of war have a certain need and necessity and are very sensitive to relatively. That is to say, every one wants what the other fellow has, and the trend has been up."

GOVERNMENT crop benefit checks for more than $352,000,000 have been paid to farmers participating in the production adjustment program, according to figures compiled by the AAA. Some $575,000,000 additional is scheduled for payment under programs now in effect, nearly 90 per cent of it before the end of this year. Thus, the farmers' stake in the AAA approximates $1,000,000,000.

Payments already made or to be made before January are included in the estimate of the bureau of agricultural economics which places 1934 cash farm income at about $6,000,000,000 compared to $5,000,000,000 last year and $4,333,000,000 in 1932.

THERE is an interesting report circulating in Wisconsin, especially in Madison. It is to the effect that President Glenn Frank of the University of Wisconsin is looking toward the Republican Presidential nomination in 1936 and that this idea explains his refusal to permit Lloyd K. Garrison to remain in Washington as head of the national labor relations board.

The Madison Capital Times said it understood Doctor Frank feels the Republican party is in need of a "liberal" candidate, yet not a "dangerous" liberal, and believes he is in a position to qualify.

To interviewers Doctor Frank declined to comment on the newspaper story. He said his insistence that Garrison return to his duties as dean of the law school was solely in the interest of the university.

CHINA'S Nationalist government has retaliated against the silver policy of the United States by imposing a 10 per cent tax on all silver exports from China. This action followed upon receipt of the American reply to a recent note from China pleading for United States co-operation in maintaining silver prices and halting the drain of silver from China.

The United States' answer, offering a measure of co-operation, but pointing out that the United States silver program was deemed mandatory by President Roosevelt, failed to satisfy the Chinese.

ORGANIZED labor doesn't like S. Clay Williams, chairman of the new national industrial recovery board recently appointed by President Roosevelt. At the San Francisco convention of the American Federation of Labor, a resolution was adopted demanding an investigation of Mr. Williams' attitude as vice chairman of the board of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company of Winston-Salem, N. C., the charge being that he was opposed to trade unions and to collective bargaining with them.

S. Clay Williams

The federation's executive council instructed President Williams Green to present the matter to Mr. Roosevelt on his return to Washington, and he promised to do so. Incidentally, it should be recorded that Mr. Green was re-elected president without opposition.

It is not considered likely that the federation will get far with its fight on Mr. Williams. He was deliberately selected for membership on the board because his conservatism will be a foil to the comparative radicalism of other members, especially Sidney Hillman and Leon C. Marshall. The other two members, Arthur D. Whiteside, head of Dun and Bradstreet, and Walton Hale Hamilton, are rated as moderately conservative.

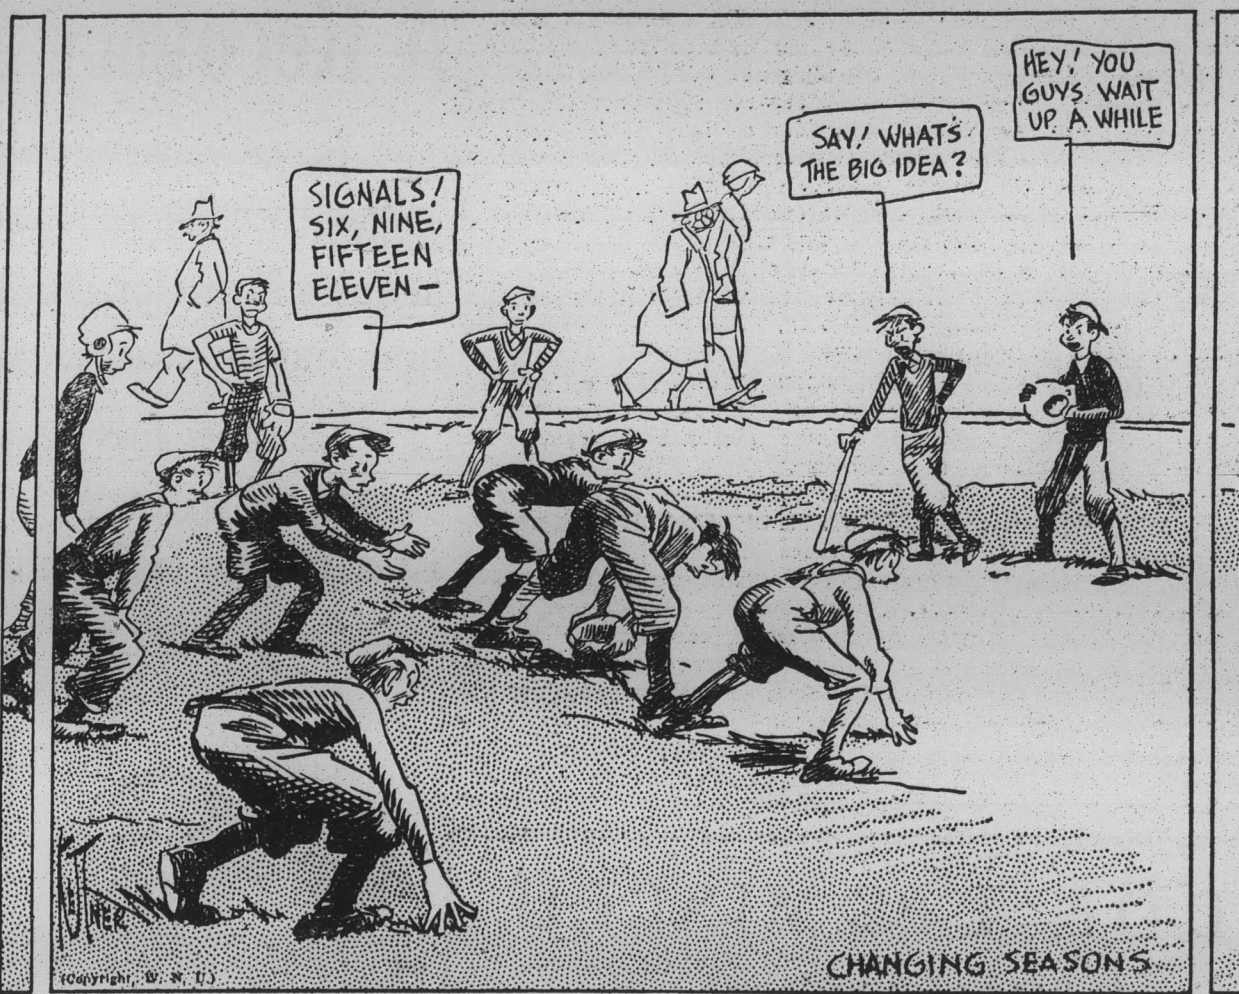

The new board is hard at work on the problems which beset the NRA. It has devised methods for quicker transaction of business and has strengthened the subordinate executive personnel, and, in the matter of enforcement, it has agreed not to interfere in labor disputes, these being relegated to Secretary Perkins and the labor relations board.

IN a plane piloted by Bill Bowlin, Admiral Richard E. Byrd returned to Little America, Antarctica, from the advance weather base where he spent almost seven months alone, making observations. He apparently was almost recovered from the serious illness which was caused by fumes of an oil stove in his little snowbound hut. He had gained in flesh and was in the best of spirits.

RHODE ISLAND Republicans are quite satisfied with Felix Hebert as senator and have renominated him. For governor the state convention named Gen. Luke H. Gallan, a veteran of the Spanish-American and World wars.

Uncertain, Coy and Hard to Please

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

They ain't no reg'lar bath tubs, but me an' John every Sunday strips off, shipboard an' pours buckets of water over each other.

"Yep," said the old boat builder. "brother John an' me is out of the tourist business. We figured, there be'n' not much doin' in our own line that we might put up log cabins on the old place for folks to stay in overnight, or mebbe a week at a time. Most everybody that's got a piece of ground between here an' Machias does it, an' makes money, so they tell me, but I guess the women folks does the most of the tendin' to it. I thought once that puttin' a boat together so she would ride the water like a duck was quite a leetle trick, but it ain't nawthin' to fixin' up a camp so it will please a woman."

"Bel'n' mechanics from boys up, buildin' the cabins wasn't no trouble. We just drew along the rud a piece an' see what the shacks that the farmers had built was like; then we come home, got the lumber from town, an' built us five of 'em. There they be now. Take a look at 'em an' tell me if you ever seen anything that could beat 'em for the right draft an' beam. They's everything into 'em. Hot air stoves for chilly weather, pictures of the world's biggest battles that we got out of a history book our grand dad left us when he died an' an' all the tin ware an' chiny anybody needs to get a meal together with."

"Just to give the place a home like touch, we took a trip around some of the farms an' got some things to pretty 'em up, like tidies for the chairs an' artificial flowers an' wall mottoes. When we had everything ready an' invitin' we put up a sign: 'Camps, night, day an' weeks if you want 'em' out by the big rud and sure enough, right away folks begun to come in."

"But they was a kind of folks that was different from any me an' John had ever see. The first was a woman about sixty with a husband a little older. Before she would even look at one of the camps she began to ask questions of me."

"Are these places clean?" says she. "They don't look it."

"They're bran new, ma'am," I says. "Never been lived in."

"Are the furnishings adequate?" "They're the adequatest furnishings money can buy," I says wonderin' what she was talkin' about."

"Very well, I'll look at them."

"I was goin' along, but she waved me away. 'I'll let you know our decision,' she says, an' takin' the bunch of keys I gave her off she went, her husband trailin' along behind her."

"I was just thinkin' how pleased an' surprised she'd be, when back she come, hot foot."

"There's no bawth in that first cabin," she says. "Have any of them bawths?"

"Well, no, not exactly."

"Just what do you mean, by not exactly?"

"I mean they ain't no reg'lar bath tubs, but me an' John every Sunday strips off, ship-board fashion an' pours buckets of water over each other. They ain't nothin' like it for givin' you a appetite for breakfast."

"I don't know yet what made the old dame so mad, but she just red-dened up like she'd been insulted."

says, 'Come on Henry' to the man, an' off they go to their car."

"I felt pretty low about the business for a while, an' then pretty soon another couple shows up."

"We want a cottage by the shore," says the woman, who was young an' kind of movin' pictur' lookin'."

"Not too near the shore," says the man."

"As close as it can be. What's the use of coming to a place like this if we can't see the river?"

"You won't be able to see the river for the fog in the morning, if you don't take that shack up on the hill."

"Very well. You can go there and I will take the cunning little one by the beach."

"Just as you say. But don't expect me to rescue you if a bear comes snooping around."

"Then what does the girl do but bust out cryin' an' says the feller is a wuss brute than any bear, an' as soon as she can get to a railroad station she is goin' home to her mother. So she hops into the car, an' he climbs after her an' that's all of that."

"It was beginnin' to look as if the business wasn't goin' to go so well" when along comes two old ladies chuggin' down the road an' one yells to us if we have a camp empty."

"When she finds we has five of 'em she an' her friend starts to look 'em over, an' by an' by we hear high words about the furnishin'."

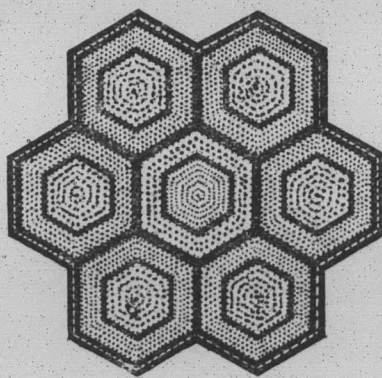

"It seems one of 'em was sore because they wasn't no hooked rugs on the floor, an' the other wanted a fire place. They thrashed that out, by an' by decidin' to go back to the first cabin they'd looked at, an' there they got into a dispute about whether the cook stove would draw or not. After ten minutes they decided to find out by lightin' a fire into it. It drewed all right, but the old one claimed it only drewed because the wind was blowin' down river, an' would smoke like a volcano when the wind shifted."

"Then pretty soon, when they had moved to another cabin we could hear 'em arguin' over why they ever come here at all, an' one of 'em said the other should of come to the place that was recommended to 'em by her Cousin Alec, an' the other said that Cousin Alec was only about three-quarter witted, an' that his trouble seemed to run in the family."

"Then they both of 'em comes out of the house single file an' stalkin' right past us they gits into the car."

Crocheted Rugs in Quilt Designs

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK

During the past years patchwork quilts have been the big article of interest to the home needleworker and now we have the crocheted rug in quilt designs. The beauty of these rugs can only be appreciated after you have seen one of them. Crocheted rugs have the best wearing properties."

The rug above illustrated is the "Flower Garden" rug, which you will recognize as having received its name from the "Flower Garden" quilt. Size of rug is 30 inches and made from 2 lbs. of rag strips. Each block is made separately and when the seven are finished they are slip stitched together. The colors to be used depends upon the material you may have on hand or can dye to colors desired. Use contrasting colors for the different rows and the brighter the colors the more sunshine the rug brings to the home."

Our book No. 24 on crocheted rag rugs in quilt designs contains 20 rugs shown in colors with instructions. Write our rug Dept. and send 15c for

Guinea Pigs Adopt Young Marmot in the London Zoo

The latest bit of news from the London zoo concerns adoption of a young marmot by a colony of guinea pigs. One of the keepers of the zoo placed the marmot in the guinea pigs' pen after, for some unknown reason, it had been thrown out of its home burrow. The hungry outcast at once approached one of the mother guinea pigs which graciously allowed it to nurse."

The most curious thing about the incident was that thereafter when the baby marmot was hungry it did not always return to the same foster mother. Instead it appealed to any mother guinea pig that happened to be handy—and all of the guinea pigs thus approached proved equally accommodating."

squabbles a while about who was goin' to drive, and then up the rud they go."

"It was two days later before anybody else showed up, an' then it was a woman with three daughters, who was pleased with the first cabin we showed 'em an' real sociable. They was all over the place, makin' friends with the dog an' the cow an' askin' all sorts of questions. They stayed the first night an' would of stayed the second all right if it hadn't turned foggy. It was about midnight when they was a rap on our door an' there was two of the girls standin' there shiverin' but terrible mad."

"Before I had a chance to say anythin' or ask 'em anythin' the oldest spoke up an' says: 'Why don't you do something about that cow. Listen to the poor thing.'"

"I don't hear no cow," I said. "The only cow we got is in the barn."

"Well, it's somebody's cow, and we just can't bear to hear it crying that way. You must find out about it at once, or we shall leave."

"Well, I'd heard other fellers in the business say that guests must be pleased at any cost, so I slipped on some clo'es an' went out with them. We started down the rud without hearin' nothing, an' then we come up over a little hill an' one of the gals says. 'There she is now, poor dear.'"

"Where?" says I, pretty puzzled."

"Right out there. Do you mean to say you don't hear it?"

"Then of a sudden I knew what it was all about. Three miles up the river the fog horn was goin', an' them gals was out on an errand of mercy to get me to put it out of its misery."

"The next day I says to Henry: 'Henry! Tomorrow you an' me is goin' to take down that sign on the rud an' retire from the outdoor hotel business. That feller that said that women is uncertain coy an' hard to please was smarter than Solomon an' Dan'l put together.'"

Camping Out Started in Eighteenth Century

Camping, as an American practice, originated in the Eighteenth century for a different purpose than did the contemporary outdoor recreation, says the Tulsa World. In the early days "camp meetings" were religious festivals which all the neighborhood families attended. Then there were few churches and communities, so a certain spot would be appointed for services at a specified time of year. All the farmers from miles around would participate in the three or four days' services, and during this time the families would lodge near by in tents or shacks. Their purpose was to establish a temporary community."

In 1885 churches were well established in all organized communities, and pioneering in the United States was virtually ended. People became weary of the city, especially the youths, so a New York business man conceived the idea of establishing a camp. From the first year of operation, which included six boys, to the present date, the total number in all camps has swelled to over 2,000,000. Older people became interested in this back-to-nature movement; now 10 per cent of all the population shares in this recreation."

Maple Long Preferred by Furniture Craftsmen

"Through the centuries furniture craftsmen have appreciated maple and their loving hands have wrought such miracles of beautiful maple furniture that their historic consequence dwells with us today in our homes, where they enjoy enduring welcome," says the Educational Institute of the Furniture World.

"Particularly in the original American colonies, settled by our Pilgrim and Puritan forefathers, was this wood specially favored. Here in this humble beginning maple played a large part in the origin of the great colonial period in furniture design. During the Seventeenth century the Swedish influence in maple furniture design began to make itself felt."

"With crude tools, but great genius, skillful hands carved out of maple great furniture masterpieces that are today priceless treasures. Their splendid rugged character, fine and simple design, serve to emphasize the cheerful warmth of this historic wood."

"Present day designers hold maple in high reverence and respect the traditions of its background. And factories, too, busily engaged in the

Why the Sudden Change to Liquid Laxatives?

Doctors have always recognized the value of the laxative whose dose can be measured, and whose action can be thus regulated to suit individual need."

The public, too, is fast returning to the use of liquid laxatives. People have learned that a properly prepared liquid laxative brings a more natural movement without any discomfort at the time, or after."

The dose of a liquid laxative can be varied to suit the needs of the individual. The action can thus be regulated. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys."

PUBLIC HEALTH LEAGUE SEEKS DEFEAT PROPOSITIONS 9 & 17

Pointing out that officers of the California Chiropractic Association have denounced initiative propositions 9 (Chiropractic) and 17 (Naturopathic) as useless legislation and "two of the most dangerous proposals ever presented to the voters," the San Diego County branch of the Public Health League of California strongly advocates defeat of both measures.

In a statement to voters, the Public Health League says in part:

"Chiropractic and Naturopathic groups, by the very nature of their limited training, are not qualified to enter the higher fields of surgery and medicine where the password is knowledge and skill.

"The responsible duty of serving your loved ones in times of crises demands years of intensive study, and unending research.

"Propositions 9 and 17 would give Chiropractors and Naturopaths now practicing drugless methods the rights and privileges of physicians and surgeons, including the practice of surgery and care of women in childbirth, prescription of drugs and narcotics, and equal privileges with licensed physicians in county hospitals and publicly supported institutions.

"Propositions 9 and 17 should be overwhelmingly defeated."

Only a small turnout came to the opening of a Spanish class Tuesday afternoon at the Scout hut in the M. E. church grounds. If a larger group does not come out for this study the class cannot be continued by Mr. Messenger as a part of adult free education. If you are interested, be there next Tuesday at 1:30 p. m.

Miscreants or would-be burglars Wednesday night broke the window glass on rear windows of Dr. Eby's office and the Ocean Beach News. The glass was broken so that the law-breakers might unfasten the catch to open the windows, however, these catches are of a special kind and apparently the men or boys did not know how to work them. Wire is set in the glass on these windows but the wire too had been broken out to allow enough space for a hand to enter and work at the fastener. Entrance was not gained.

Parent Teacher Ass'n

Ocean Beach PTA was represented at the Board of Education Bldg. Wednesday morning by Mrs. Hettie M. Hall publicity chairman. Mrs. G. A. Lazar president of the ninth district spoke on how the government has helped the parent teacher movement.

"The child is the most important thing in the world," said Mrs. Lazar. "The White House had been thrown open for receptions to PTA groups. Promoting conferences upon vital problems where children are concerned, were held under different presidents from President Cleveland and interest in PTA work makes interesting history.

In May 1898, 28 states were represented in the National convention with headquarters in Washington. The object of all endeavor then was to train the mother.

President Hoover drew up the Children's Charter. Every parent might well thrill with pride as he reads this charter.

The class in home nursing under Mrs. J. C. Brewer, Child Welfare Chairman, 9th district, will be held Wednesday Nov. 8th, in the scout hut at 10:30 a. m.

DAD'S COUNCIL TOO

The Dad's council of Ocean Beach PTA are a separate group with different meeting time.

At this time when San Diego has been favored with the national convention in May 1935, the Dads are going to be invaluable in special activities and are especially invited to attend Dad's council meetings.

What the Dad may do to assist and promote child welfare work will be graphically outlined in his talk before the PTA Nov. 14th, at 7:30 p. m., in the Methodist church. "The Child and the Courts" will be the subject of Judge Philip Smith. We want the Dad's of Ocean Beach to hear Judge Smith and give him an audience he will be pleased with. Remember the date, Nov. 14th in the evening!

WHAT IS NATUROPATHY?

"As the name would imply, Naturopathy means the treatment of disease or injury by using natural methods, which are systems or therapies that parallel the laws of nature," says Dr. T. F. Patton, president of the San Diego branch of the Naturopathic Association of California. Dr. Patton states that the Initiative Act number 17 on the Nov. 6th ballot, known as the Naturopathic Drugless Healing Act, gives every person the right to choose their own doctor. This is in accordance with the American principle of fair play. He who pays the bills, privately, or as a taxpayer, shall also, have the right to choose his doctor.

"The United States Congress just enacted a Naturopathic Act for the District of Columbia," says Dr. Patton. "And what is good for Uncle Sam should be applied to California also for the benefit of our citizens."

The curriculum of the Naturopathic board compares most favorably with that of the Medical board. An M. D. takes 4000 hours while the Naturopathic takes 3600 hours of study to qualify for examination. The M. D. must study drugs and major surgery in those 4000 hours, while all of the time of the Naturopathic is devoted to the study of the human body, its functions, its organic and chemical reactions without the use of drugs or surgery.
